RYLA Awards Made

Six students received Group Leader Scholarships of $500 each at the recent RYLA camp. With their sponsoring clubs, they are: Hans Gao (Newbury Park), Harper Resewehr (Cambria Sunrise), Bryanna Jew (Newbury Park), Christian Brown (Tehachapi), Brody Rohach (Moorpark) and Matias Friz (Moorpark).

Named to receive Student Choice $500 scholarships awards were Hans Gao (Newbury Park) and Jacqueline "Cha Cha" Durazo (Cambria).

Scholarship funds are the result of special club donations from among those participating in the RYLA experience.

RYLA Director Darin Arasmith has more details.

"Chelsey Says!"

A view of our Rotary world from the ground up!

By Jim Moore, PP Santa Barbara Sunrise

Note about Chelsey: Chelsey is Jim's blue eyed, pink nosed, tri-color, mixed breed, cattle dog whose focus in life is eating, sleeping, keeping an eye on Jim and digging for Rotary information. Exactly in that order!

"Hey, Chelsey! I see you've been digging for more information on the Vocational Service Business Award."

Chelsey says: "Yeah, Jim! We're supposed to nominate a business person who exemplifies the Object of Rotary."

"Well, I know the Object of Rotary isn't showing up each week to get that all-you-can-eat bacon that you love so much. What is the Object of Rotary?"

Chelsey says: "Good question! The Object of Rotary is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise."

"Wow! What does the heck does that mean?"

Chelsey says: "RI says, in particular, to encourage and foster:

First: The development of acquaintance as an opportunity to serve.

Second: High ethical standards in business and profession, the recognition of worthiness of all useful occupations, and the dignifying of each Rotarian's occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

Third: The application of the ideal of service in each Rotarian’s personal, business, and community life.

Fourth: The advancement of international understanding, goodwill and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional persons united in the ideal of service.

“Great! Who are you going to nominate, Chelsey?”

Chelsey says: “I’m going to nominate that nice person from the pet store on State Street who gave me a special treat and had the store sing ‘happy birthday’ to me on my birthday last week.”

“Isn’t that more along the lines of the all-you-can-eat ideal?”

Chelsey says: “Well, silly, I’m a dog! It says above that my first focus in life is eating. That pet store person knew the way to win my nomination.”

“May the meditations in my life find a welcome in your eyes.”

Risen Rotary

Just to show you how little we depend on either the District or RI, we have by and large remained faithful to our commitments to our clubs.

Despite the major financial hit taken by the Rotary

Foundation – like many of our members – and the natural doubt in the stability of the organization as a whole, we have mostly never doubted the basic tenets of Rotary. But we are now in a state of resurrection living. Rotary is surviving, our clubs are generally getting along, and those who have been harmed by the economy will recover.

Story after story has reached my ears regarding members who pick up the delinquent tabs of members in financial distress. Over time, stumbling members will return with a blast. When that happens, things will always look different to those who were helped and to those who helped. None of this would have happened in the absence of Rotary. We should all be thriving in our continuing association with this great organization! We are changing the world!

PRIP Cliff Dochterman

Editor’s Note: This is the last in a series of quotations from a talk PRIP Cliff Dochterman gave to the San Francisco Rotary Club on the occasion of its 100th anniversary. He had been asked to talk about the future of Rotary.

The only other dark clouds I see on the horizon are those which come when our dreams are too small. If Rotary seeks leaders with vision, imagination and courage to dream huge dreams, there is no limit to the achievements Rotarians can make.

In fact, the next hundred years may be even greater than any crystal ball could ever predict. The great movement which has spread around the world in 100 years could be merely the prelude of what is to come. Our challenge is to dream great dreams – then make dreams real. What we actually do is far more significant than what we say we do.

In the next hundred years, the world needs Rotary – because Rotary can build a better world. And the amazing thing is – this movement was launched right here in San Francisco.

So, those are my predictions for the next 100 years! It’s up to you to make them come true.

Group 8 Family Zoo Day

By Wade Nomura, (Carpinteria Morning) Governor’s Group 8 Rep

The presidents of the Rotary Clubs of Group 8 (Santa Barbara area) wanted to do something different and memorable during their year in office. They found that what made each club special and unique was not known to the other clubs. How would they share their unique with the other clubs? They couldn’t realistically go from club to club, but there was a possibility that they could all come together for one BIG meeting.

The Santa Barbara Zoo was suggested as it could hold the entire Group of 400 in an open, casual venue with things for all generations to do. It was decided that if it would fit into a budget of $25 per member (including food), the clubs would all support it. It was also decided that in order to assist members in having to pay extra for this event, ALL the clubs would go dark that week and use the weekly meeting fees to offset the expense.

The uniqueness of this group of presidents was the fact that they started meeting nearly twenty months ago, and had this event as a goal from their original group meeting! With the goal always on their minds, the Group 8 First Annual Family Zoo Day has now become reality.

Over 300 Rotarians, family members, friends and guests attended the First Annual Rotary Family Zoo Day. Rotarians enjoyed an afternoon of food, drink, music, camaraderie and animals.

Sis Chris & The Brewery Boys

Entertainment was furnished by the “Brewery Boys”— a band made up mostly of Carpinteria Rotarians. These Rotarians include Past President Dave Durlinger, President-Elect Paul Wright (also owner of the Island Brewery; hence the name), Mathew Berger, Lyn Graf, Preston Marx, and David Powdrell.

Also in attendance were District Governor Anil Garg, District Governor-Elect Luz Maria Ortiz-Smith, District Governor Nominee Designate and Group 8 Representative Wade Nomura, and nearly fifty potential Rotarians who had been invited by the clubs and sponsored by a PR grant from Rotary International.

The only obstacle that could have put a damper on the event was the half inch of rain that came very early in the morning. In Rotary fashion, and a few hours before the event, the sun came out, leaving a beautiful Rotary Day.

How do you top that? By doing it again next year! This event will become an annual reunion event coordinated by the Group 8 Presidents, Class of 2008-2009.

Congratulations to Presidents Laurie Yttri (Santa Barbara), Barbara Tzur (Goleta Noontime), David Bloedel (Carpinteria), David Vo (Santa

Weak Clubs

Overheard on District Awards Night:

“What happened to (club) this year? I didn’t hear their name mentioned once.”

“They were just weak this year.”

It’s not enough to categorize a club as being “weak” without doing something about telling the sitting club president what exactly “weak” means.

Comparing that club against a “strong” club isn’t really the answer, because every club — even two clubs in the same community — has a different culture, perhaps meets at a different time of day, gathers at a different meeting location, and attracts different types of members because of those two differences alone, never mind all the other possibilities.

In some clubs, the weakest member of the board of directors is assigned to Vocational Service, because no one has ever come up with ways to do traditional VS projects, so the Avenue of Service attracts less-energetic board members who don’t aspire to change the club’s VS culture. How is a club to know that ten miles away there’s an imaginative, energetic VS Chair just bursting at the seams with ideas?

In some clubs, the weakest member of the board gets Community Service, because the CS projects are repeated year after year and require no additional initiative. Across the District, in a city with the same population, in a club of approximately the same size, are more projects being done every year than can be claimed by any other service club in that or any city!

It's too easy to say that the sitting president of the "weak" club didn't pay attention during PETS, didn't attend the District Assembly, attended Mid-Terms during the year that some other Avenue of Service was the topic of discussion, doesn't live in the same city where the club meets, has a demanding job and a poor family situation. Any or all of those could be justifiable reasons for a poor presidential performance.

But, for whatever the reason, a poor president doesn't know what's good and bad, weak or strong. How can we get past that lack of information? Easy.

1. A strong, perceptive Group Representative or Assistant Governor who sees serious club shortcomings can call in so-called "experts" from around the District. They can be persuaded to help, to provide their years of experience to the president and the "weak" board members. Even really recalcitrant office-holders will consider accepting advice from someone who's willing to drive 100 miles to give it.

2. A sitting Governor will inform the president that the club is weak in, say, Vocational Service, and "Here are some steps you can take to get your VS Chair educated and, with luck, motivated."

What does it take to start that ball rolling? Call the Governor or the Assistant to the Governor and ask, "I wonder if you'd ask someone to look in on my club to assess our strengths and weaknesses."

A team will come in, and a month later you'll be on your way toward having a renewed, vigorous club whose members are enthused, active and more effective, perhaps, than they've been for years.

Leaving a Club

The time and location of club meetings are often used as excuses for either quitting a club or not joining to begin with. Most times, there's very little club leaders can (or should) do about either situation, because most times neither excuse is valid, at least on the face of it. Former members for whom either time or location is merely an excuse to bow out of our clubs gracefully will never be back. Most have no serious friendships in the club and may have been low performers during their term of association with us.

It is true sometimes, of course. People, especially Rotarians, get promoted into new jobs that require such new focus that little room for outside distractions remains. Rotarian families experience difficulties, both personal and financial, and don't need any outside pressures confusing internal issues. People for whom time or location are serious and real issues will normally leave with a personal vow to return when the situation will permit. They will have formed fast friendships within a club, and their participation is generally above average. Things beyond their control or expectation just happened to them, and they need time to sort out their priorities of action and attention.

Both situations are capable of impacting on a club leadership that might be overly anxious to please members who decide to leave. There are two temptations to avoid:

1. There's a temptation to consider changing the meeting time or place based on the difficulties of one member, or even a small group of members.

2. There's a temptation to accede to a request on the occasion of either type of termination to go on "Leave of Absence."

Don't do either.

In the first place, a club is always under constant study by its leadership. Were meeting time and location a real problem, the dissatisfaction would seep up from the membership and a study group would already have been appointed to deal with the reported problem. A terminating member would not trigger a new study, no matter the reason for departure.

In the second place, instead of Leaves of Absence, terminate the members. Tell our departing persons that membership will remain open to them for a period of six months, and they are free, without hassle, to rejoin the club at any time within that six months. If they do return within the time limit, their problems having been solved, the club can welcome back its dedicated, newly-focused members without comment. If they don't return within the six-month period, their problems are not sufficiently solved to allow a new dedication to their club.

Make two new Continuing Resolutions for your club:

1. Provide for a semi-annual review of club time and meeting place. In most cases, this sort of review will take five minutes, then thirty seconds to report to the club board of directors that “the semi-annual review has been conducted and we recommend no change.”

2. Leaves of absence will not be granted for any reason except illness or extensive personal travel.

New Rotary Catalog

The new Rotary Catalog (in color) is now available on the Rotary Website. Want to do some shopping at RI? There it is!

Membership

To be effective, a Rotary club needs members. Your club’s ability to assist local and international communities, support The Rotary Foundation, and develop leaders capable of serving Rotary beyond the club level is directly related to the strength, size, and involvement of its membership base.

A club membership committee ensures a concerted effort to recruit new members and retain current ones. This ongoing process is essential to supporting Rotary International, which needs a dedicated club membership base to succeed.

The District Membership Committee under the direction of Kelley Gilliland (Simi Sunset) is available for help and advice. If you grab him at the start of this Rotary Year, you won’t have to be scrabbling around when District Awards are presented.

Want new friends, potential new business associates, more punch in your community? Here’s the answer.

Some Changes are Permanent

By Deborah Roberts (Pres., Ventura East)

I had lunch today with a friend, and future Rotarian, who truly inspires me. I met Steven Denlinger about a year ago at the airport. While waiting to board the plane Steven noticed and commented on my Rotary pin. We immediately began talking Rotary. Some time ago, in 1988 I believe, Steven was an Ambassadorial Scholarship recipient. We had a very intriguing conversation that day; mostly I just listened to his story. Steven was brought up in a conservative Amish-Mennonite community in Ohio. Upon receiving the Ambassadorial Scholarship he left to study abroad. The experience changed his life; Steven never returned to his Amish-Mennonite roots. Instead he has become a teacher and a writer, currently working on his memoir. You may remember the presentation he gave to our club in July of last year. His story inspires me because it is one of triumph in the struggle to become his own person.

That brings me to this article – At lunch today, Steven asked me about my experience becoming a Rotarian. As I have with many of you in the past, today I shared my story with Steven...

It was all Joe Amandoli’s fault! Joe invited me to several Rotary meetings and eventually I showed up for one – and then another. I was going to hold off on joining for two reasons: 1. I was going through a very difficult personal time. 2. I was about to have knee surgery and would be out of work and the Club for a couple of months. Well, Joe strongly encouraged me to join anyway and take a leave of absence until I could return. After much encouragement, I finally conceded. I think I may have made it to one meeting just to be inducted before I went out on “leave.” The day after my surgery I got a call from Joe letting me know he was coming by for a visit and would bring me dinner. I thought, “How nice to have such a friend.” Then, every day for nearly two weeks a different Rotarian knocked on my door to visit and bring food. Needless to say I gained a few pounds during those weeks, but the point of this story is to simply say “Thank-you.” It is also to point out that it is the little things we do, like checking in on someone who might be struggling, that make us different. We are Rotarians, we give. I didn’t know much about Rotary when I joined. No one in the Club knew much about me then, either, only that a new member was going to be out because of a bum knee. The experience was one that I look back on often. Here I was — alone and stuck in my house – I looked forward to my daily “visitors” during a time when I couldn’t do much of anything. The thoughtfulness and generosity of our members made me want to be a Rotarian, not just another member of a club. It also inspired me to become a foster parent (something I hope to return to doing again in the near future).

With only a couple of weeks left to fill this article space, I just want to say Thank-you to each and every one of you. Thank-you for making me a better person, a better Rotarian and for making this an awesome year I will never, ever forget.

Rotary changed Steven’s life in drastic, fill-the-pages-of-a-good-read kind of book way. It has changed me for the better, too.

Editor’s note: Joe Amandoli has since served as President of Ventura East. Is it any wonder?

Personal District Awards

Every year about this time, the outgoing District Governor has a chance to reward those who supported him. Sometimes it’s totally personal, sometimes there’s a formal committee. Your editor has been on or around five Awards Committees, and they all worked differently.

Sometimes there’s a hue and cry from the members: “How come he/she got it? “What in the world did he/she do to earn such an honor?” Whatever the subsequent comments might be, the fact is that the people selected are the best in the District at what they’ve done to help the sitting governor have a better year in office than he/she would have without their help.

The smoke has cleared. The following are the District’s personal awards for excellence in service during 2008-09:

There were two District Rotarians of the Year:
Dan Giordano (Bakersfield East) whose tenure as District International Service Committee Director included nurturing to their logical conclusions more than eighty matching grants, both international and inner-district.

In addition to his family and club responsibilities, Frank Ortiz (Santa Maria Breakfast) took on two additional monster chores this last year – District Conference Chair last October and Chair of the Foundation Gala just last month.

Nobody has ever worked harder to get the superior results Frank achieved.

The Dr. John Padilla Humanitarian Service Award went this year to Dr. Robert Skankey (Ojai) for his humanitarian medical work throughout the world. As this is being printed, he is off again – this time to Niger to set up a community health center for the nomads.

The Samuel L. Greene Award for Service Above Self went to Mary Howard (Oxnard Sunrise) for her origination and promulgation of Rotary Risk Management, taking individuals and clubs over the rough spots and tricky terrain while inadvertently stumbling into unsought legal liability difficulties.
